4-H Grows Confident Young People

Written by Rene McCrory, Sutter-Yuba 4-H Secretary Josh Davy, UCCE Livestock, Range, and Pasture Advisor

ead, Heart, Hands, and Health are the four Hs in 4-H, and they are the four values members work on through fun and engaging programs. 4-H is a community for all kids. In 4-H, we believe in the power of young people. We see that every child has valuable strengths and real influence to improve the world around us. Through life-changing 4-H programs, nearly six million kids and teens have taken on critical social issues, such as addressing community health inequities, engaging in civil discourse, and advocating for equity and inclusion for all. We believe in developing young people who are empowered, confident, hardworking, determined, responsible and compassionate - seeing a world beyond themselves so they have the life-long skills to succeed in college and career.

Locally we have members like Olivia Salle, who excels in leadership and civic engagement and takes advantage of programs and events that 4-H has to offer. Olivia is our newest Sutter-Yuba Teen 4-H County Ambassador. Olivia is in her third year with Franklin

4-H, where she is a club officer and the teen leader for Poultry Group. To expand her knowledge, she is also in the Pygmy Goat and Dog Groups. In the brief time she has been with 4-H she has been successful. In 2022 at the Yuba-Sutter Fair, she earned 4-H Reserve Novice Poultry Showmanship and 4-H Reserve Champion Poultry Meat Pen. 2023 proved to be her most triumphant year. Olivia took home 4-H Senior Poultry Showmanship Champion, 4-H Champion Poultry Meat Pen, Supreme Champion Poultry Meat Pen, Champion Small Breeding Hen and fourth place Small Animal Round Robin at the Yuba-Sutter Fair. Olivia also entered various agriculture items and won first place on every entry; including eggs, herbs and vegetables grown in her garden.

Olivia took her show chickens to the 2023 California State Fair where she won 4-H Senior Poultry Showmanship Champion and advanced to the 4-H Small Animal Master Showmanship Championship where she earned seventh place. In the fall, she attended the Butte County Small Animal Field Day where she competed and earned the 4-H Senior Poultry Showmanship Champion and advanced to the Small Animal Round Robin and took home first place. Olivia loves her show chickens, Ellie, Kevin, and Willow. So much that she has started donating the fertilized eggs to the 4-H Embryology to go to the 2024 State Convention and Made for Excellence Conference. Her focus for FFA is Greenhouse Plant Sciences, Dog Handling and Rabbit Husbandry. She will be showing her rabbit, Duke, and her pug, Dixie, at this year's Yuba-Sutter Fair.

And if Olivia was not busy enough, in 2023 she was crowned Miss Teen Agriculture America Sutter County. The Agriculture America Pageant Program focuses on serving the community by promoting, educating, and working in various Ag industries including volunteering and attending events. Olivia has volunteered at the Yuba-Sutter Food Bank, Tri Counties Community Center, Wreaths Across America, Walk for Alzheimer's and Clash for Cash Jackpot shows. She has been part of adopting a family for Christmas, Valentines for Seniors, Prom Dress Giveaway, Cookies for Law Enforcement and even had a sit-down interview with Secretary of the California Department of Food and Agriculture, Karen Ross. Olivia visits April Lane Preschool where she brings "Ag to the Classroom". She has shown the students the life cycle of eggs and chickens, as well as created fun crafts like growing seeds from a cotton ball and inspiring backyard gardens. The students at April Lane Preschool always look forward to their visits from Queen Olivia! In March of 2024, Olivia was named Miss Teen West Coast Agriculture America based on her many dedicated hours of community service and involvement.

Oliva will be taking her Market Poultry Meat Pen to the 2024 Yuba-Sutter Fair. She will be selling her market animal at the Junior Livestock Auction on Saturday, June 22. Come check it out, the fun starts at 8:30am! @ program for local schools to hatch.

As a Teen 4-H County Ambassador, her team has been busy planning and executing events like the 4-H Color Me Green 5k, County Presentation Day and 4-H Awards Banquet Night. She loves working with kids. Being a County Ambassador has helped Olivia become more comfortable with teaching younger members, public speaking, and planning events.

Olivia is currently a Sophomore at River Valley High School and a member of River Valley FFA. She has enjoyed competing at FFA field day competitions and had the opportunity

Women In Agriculture: Whitney Brim-DeForest

Written by Ciera Mannan, YSFB Program Coordinator

ithin the Yuba and Sutter communities, there are a lot of women involved in agriculture. The dedication and expertise shown by these women serve as inspiration for all who come in contact with them. Whitney Brim-DeForest is a great example of an individual who serves multiple roles within the world of agriculture. Whitney is a Rice and Wild Rice Advisor with the University of California Division of Agriculture and Natural Resources, based out of the Cooperative Extension in Sutter-Yuba. Here, she displays a commitment to supporting sustainable farming practices and empowering local communities. Beyond her role as an advisor, Whitney is also the County Director for the office allowing her the opportunity to work with 4-H volunteers, 4-H youth, Master Gardener volunteers, and other members of the community to make the Yuba-Sutter area a great place for everyone.

Whitney was introduced to agriculture from a very early age. Growing up in Southern Oregon, her aunt, uncle, and cousins grew pears before transitioning to raising cattle. Her great-grandparents owned land and ranched longhorn cattle in the Texas Panhandle while her mother was growing up. After retirement, her grandparents returned to the family farm where many extended family members still reside. While she was no stranger to agriculture, her passion for plants stemmed from taking botany and ecology courses in college. Throughout college, Whitney gained practical experience by working on several farms including a small homestead in British Colombia, Canada, and an orange ranch in Mallorca, Spain, through the Willing Workers on Organic Farms program. Upon graduation, she embarked on a journey with the Peace Corps, initiating her career in rice systems and engaging with farmers cultivating cowpeas, corn, millet, and sorghum. Her transformative experience working with subsistence farmers in Senegal, West Africa, fueled her passion for weed science and management. Following that, Whitney returned to the West Coast for graduate school where she completed an M.S. in International Agricultural Development and later a PhD in Horticulture and Agronomy at the University of California, Davis.

Alongside her advisory role, Whitney is a part-time instructor at Chico State in the Plant Sciences Department where she helps connect students to local science and agriculture jobs. While engaging with her various agricultural programs, Whitney strives to enlighten individuals about the origins of their food, the significance of farming and agricultural lands, cultivation techniques, and fostering connections to agriculture, especially for those less familiar with the industry.

Whitney serves as an immense source of inspiration for women aspiring to join the field. Her role as the first woman in over 100 years to work with the UC Cooperative Extension speaks volumes. Through her dedication, she has led the way, inspired, and guided many young individuals while nurturing their development and fueling their enthusiasm for agriculture. Whitney is an advocate for increased participation of young women in agriculture and agricultural research, highlighting the importance of food cultivation and the ongoing need for individuals to pursue careers in this field. With words of empowerment, she urges, "Make sure to let your voice and experience be heard, don't be shy! Women are vital to agriculture all over the world, and we have played a huge part in the development of agriculture and the domestication of crops and animals in all parts of this planet." 👄

Women In Agriculture: Shelby Stricklin

Written by Ciera Mannan, YSFB Program Coordinator

S helby Stricklin is a shining light on agriculture, where the worlds of finance, farming, and ranching intersect. Shelby's connection to agriculture runs deep, rooted in her upbringing on a family ranch where she learned the value of hard work and resilience from an early age. With a background in ranching, she understands the highs and lows that come with agricultural life, giving her a personal angle as she transitioned into the world of agricultural finance.

Born and raised in Colusa County, Shelby's passion for agriculture blossomed during her involvement in the local 4-H club. As part of a project in 4-H and FFA, Shelby and her siblings started a registered Angus cattle operation, which continues to thrive today. Through her involvement in FFA, Shelby gained essential skills such as perseverance, accountability, effective time management, and the art of relationship building, all of which have contributed to her current role with AgWest Farm Credit.

After earning an Agricultural Business degree from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Shelby knew she wanted to combine the worlds of finance and agriculture. AgWest Farm Credit has allowed

Shelby to do that. Ascending the ranks from a credit analyst to a Senior Vice President Portfolio Manager required dedication to form the foundation for her journey to success. As a Portfolio Manager, Shelby helps farmers and ranchers grow their businesses. This year will mark her 15th year with AgWest Farm Credit. Shelby's passion for service and agriculture impacts all who have the opportunity to work with her.

In 2022, Shelby's commitment to the agricultural community led her to join the Yuba-Sutter Farm Bureau, assuming a pivotal role as a board member. Recognizing the Farm Bureau's responsibility to educate the community about agriculture, especially its significance for the youth, Shelby participates in advocating and supporting the future sustainability of agriculture. Shelby currently serves as the 3rd Vice President and Chair of the Finance Committee. Additionally, she is actively involved in the Agriculture Education and Marketing Committees. Serving on these committees, she is deeply involved with the planning and execution of numerous Farm Bureau programs including Spring Fling, scholarships, AgVentures at the Yuba-Sutter Fair, and Farm Day.

Shelby is a positive role model for women in agriculture, through her experiences, advocacy efforts, and her commitment to preserving its traditions. Her career success underlines the power of hard work, loyalty, and perseverance. In reflecting on her journey to success, Shelby shared that initially, as a woman in agriculture, proving oneself may require extra effort. Yet, she states, "If you have a passion for it, there is always a place for you, there is always a role you can play." This mindset resonates deeply, emphasizing that passion and determination pave the way while the relationships you create within the industry can assist in making a significant impact.

Agriculture offers diverse careers that extend far beyond farming and ranching. The diversity within this industry includes roles ranging from agricultural engineers to marketers, financiers, and policymakers. Each profession plays an important role in sustaining and advancing the agricultural sector. Contribution of innovation, sustainability, and economic growth are vital support systems that ensure the resilience and prosperity of agriculture. Shelby's role at AgWest Farm Credit and the Yuba-Sutter Farm Bureau serves as an excellent example of the diverse and interconnected nature of careers within agriculture. 👄

Women In Agriculture: Melanie Munro -Red Maple Ranch Flowers

n the heart of Yuba City, where the agricultural traditions run deep and the sense of community thrives, a blossoming testament to the resilience and ingenuity of women in agriculture exists. Melanie Munro has carved out her own vibrant niche, cultivating beautiful flowers and relationships within the Yuba and Sutter communities.

Melanie attended Yuba City High School while helping on her grandparents' mandarin farm. Following high school, she studied at the University of California, Davis, where she received a degree in Food Science. After having children and deciding she wanted to stay home, she shifted her career path towards transforming their property into a wedding venue, allowing her to balance work with family life. Following the challenges faced with this new journey, the pivotal decision was made to instead establish a flower farm in 2019.

Red Maple Ranch Flowers has evolved through trial and error, shaping its current success. When Melanie considered which flowers to grow, she selected varieties suitable for our region's climate and those in high demand among customers. Even today,

Munro Family

Melanie actively seeks input from her family, friends, and customers to cater to their floral preferences. Throughout the years, Melanie has grown a plethora of sunflower varieties and zinnias. This year, she has expanded her operation by introducing perennial flowers to the farm. Strawflower, statice, dusty miller, rosemary, feverfew, and tetra whites are among the diverse selections flourishing on the flower farm. These blooms serve as excellent bouquet fillers and complement the charm of the sunflowers and zinnias.

With the help of her family, Melanie has devised a planting strategy ensuring continuous harvest throughout the season. Utilizing a drip sprinkler system, they plant each flower field in neat rows. Sunflowers and zinnias are systematically planted in two to three rows weekly. Following planting, the seeds are carefully rototilled into the soil to shield them from birds. Despite their meticulous efforts, weed control remains a persistent challenge on their flower farm. While they diligently tend to existing weeds, new ones emerge, prompting them to continually troubleshoot the underlying causes. After harvesting sunflowers, they transport them to farmers markets around the Yuba-Sutter area to sell, expanding their farm's reach and directly connecting with their community. "Seeing the joy our flowers bring to people makes all of the challenges of the business worth it," Melanie reflects. Red Maple Ranch Flowers became a Yuba-Sutter Farm Bureau Business Support Member in 2021, signaling a deeper commitment to community involvement. Melanie's passion for engagement extends to nurturing the next generation, starting with her children who have been immersed in farm life from their earliest days. Drawing inspiration from her grandmother, Melanie relayed "Once they can count back change, they are old enough to work for the farm." However, their involvement begins long before that milestone;

all her children have grown up amidst the flower fields, soaking in the sights and scents of nature. Recognizing the importance of investing in youth and their futures, Melanie and Justin actively support local high school students by offering employment opportunities at the farmers' markets and in the fields.

Through her vision and hard work, Melanie's unwavering dedication has blossomed into a thriving business that cultivates vibrant blooms and sows the seeds of hope and inspiration in those around her. With each petal that blooms under her care, Melanie reminds us to stay true to our dreams, to persevere in the face of challenges, and to always lead with kindness. As she echoes, "Be strong, stick to your dreams, and keep pushing forward no matter the circumstances." @

Women In Agriculture: Megan Grima

egan Stephens-Grima was born and raised in Sutter County, making her the 4th generation on the family farm. The family owned and operated a walnut huller, processor, and farmed peaches, prunes, and watermelons. In 2001, the Stephens family bought a farm stand located off Hwy 99, just south of Yuba City, which evolved into Stephens Farmhouse which many of us know and love today. From the time she turned 15, Megan worked the counter in the farmhouse selling pies, cookies, and baked goods until she was 18 years old. During the summer, Megan also sold wholesale watermelons at farmers' markets from Sacramento to Chico. Despite obtaining a degree in Organizational Communications from California State University, Sacramento, Megan's passion for agriculture remained unwavering.

Upon graduation, Megan returned home. There, she began her career as a Farm and Agribusiness Insurance Advisor for Oakview Insurance Services. While her role shifted away from direct farming, Megan's commitment to the industry continued, fueled by her belief in continuous education and staying connected to the agricultural community. As an insurance advisor, Megan helps farmers protect their assets while cultivating strong relationships with her clients, acting not just as an advisor, but as a trusted partner invested in their success. Through her knowledge and dedication, Megan ensures that those who feed the world are protected against adversity, allowing them to focus on what they do best: providing for their families and communities.

During her tenure as an active director of the Yuba-Sutter Farm Bureau and graduate of the California Leadership Program's 50th Class, Megan gained valuable insight into the trials and tribulations that farmers and ranchers face on a day-today basis. She emphasizes the importance of organizations like the Farm Bureau in providing access to information and educational resources, bridging the gap between policymakers and farmers. Megan's advocacy extends to motivating others to engage with agriculture and recognize the complexity of the industry and the dedication required by those who sustain it. She brings attention to the need for understanding of the realities that farmers and ranchers face, "Get involved! Agriculture is so important not just to this area but to the whole world. It's crucial to be involved and understand what is happening within this industry."

From her days working at Stephens Farmhouse to her current role at Oakview Insurance, Megan's journey shows passion and dedication towards agriculture. Her unwavering commitment along with her knowledge of the industry, proves her dedication to the well-being of farmers and ranchers. "Being a woman in agriculture allows for a different perspective to be brought to the table" Megan remarks, recognizing the unique insights she brings to her work. As Megan continues her journey in the agricultural field, her dedication to education, advocacy, and community engagement inspires the next generation of farmers and agricultural leaders. @

Women In Agriculture: Lisa Herbert

ince assuming the role of Sutter County's first female Agricultural Commissioner in 2016, Lisa Herbert has been a dynamic presence in the agricultural community. Her dedication to fostering collaboration and advocating for sustainable practices has made her a respected leader. Lisa continues to shape the county's agricultural industry with her unwavering commitment to the well-being of farmers and the land they farm.

The origins of the Agricultural Commissioner's office can be traced back to the late 19th century when California's agricultural landscape was rapidly evolving. Amidst the challenges of pest outbreaks, food safety concerns, and the need for standardization, counties across the state began establishing agricultural departments. These departments served as vital hubs for regulatory oversight, research, and education, ensuring the prosperity and sustainability of California's agricultural sector. Over the years, Sutter County's Agricultural Commissioner played a vital role in protecing the interests of farmers, ranchers, and consumers.

Born in Bellflower, California, and raised in Live Oak, Lisa Herbert was no stranger to the agricultural industry. Her father was a hobby farmer growing kiwis and prunes and had a cacao farm on the big island of Hawaii for a short time. After high school, Lisa attended Yuba College before earning a degree in Environmental Studies from California State University, Sacramento. Her journey into agricultural leadership began in 1998 when she began working as an Agricultural and Standards Biologist for Sutter County's Agricultural Department. In 2002, she was appointed Supervising Agricultural and Standards Biologist laying the foundation for her appointment as Agricultural Commissioner fourteen years later.

In her role as the Agricultural Commissioner, Lisa assumes responsibility for the local administration of certain federal, state, and local laws and regulations that protect the public. Additionally, as the County Sealer of Weights and Measures, she ensures fairness and accuracy in commercial transactions, further bolstering consumer confidence. Under her leadership, the Agricultural Commissioner's office continues to evolve, embracing innovation and collaboration to address the challenges of the modern agricultural landscape.

Lisa's influence extends beyond her role as Sutter County's

Agricultural Commissioner. She is actively involved with the planning and execution of our local Spray Safe training, where she emphasizes the importance of sustainable and safe pesticide usage. She provides monthly updates about her county at YSFB's monthly board meeting and serves on the YSFB Nominating Committee. Throughout her involvement, Lisa continues to demonstrate her dedication to her community.

As Sutter County's first female Agricultural Commissioner, Lisa Herbert not only embodies a legacy of progress but also charts a bold new course for generations to come. Her advocacy, expertise, and unwavering commitment to the community serve as a testament to the enduring spirit of agricultural stewardship in the Sacramento Valley. In her hands, the seeds of change take root, ensuring that Sutter County's agricultural heritage flourishes for years to come. @

Women In Agriculture: Christine Ivory

n communities worldwide, agriculture is not just about cultivating crops and raising livestock; it is about fostering connections, nurturing growth, and encouraging positive change. Christine Ivory is a driving force whose unwavering dedication to both agriculture and community engagement has made her a role model for those around her.

Born and raised in Yuba City, Christine was surrounded by agriculture from a young age. Her grandmother started the family tradition of working in the canning peach industry in 1956 with Del Monte Foods as the first female machinery mechanic. Later, both her mother and father worked for Del Monte. Christine's upbringing in the food production industry led her to a summer job at Lomo Receiving Co. as a weighmaster where she helped develop the computer program used for weighing trucks.

After earning two degrees from the University of Notre Dame, in Business and Computer Applications, Christine returned to her roots in Yuba City to begin her professional journey. She started her career at Naumes Inc., transitioning to Pacific Coast Producers, where she spent 16 years then became the first female District Field Manager. In 2017, Christine joined Blue Diamond Growers as the District 1 Regional Manager, making her the second female to hold the role. She oversees 300 cooperative members, providing comprehensive support to address their diverse needs and ensure their collective success. In 2007. Christine ioined the Yuba-Sutter Farm Bureau. Driven by her passion to promote and protect agriculture she found the mission of the organization matched her personal goal. For more than 14 years, Christine has been an integral part of the farm bureau's work, serving as a board member and exhibiting exceptional leadership as the board president for three consecutive years. Notably, Christine has played a significant role in shaping the YSFB's trajectory, contributing to the establishment of the Fund for Agriculture Education 501(c) (3), starting the Spring Fling fundraising event that was formerly the Meeting of the Members Dinner and actively representing Yuba and Sutter Counties at California Farm Bureau events.

Christine's impact reaches beyond the agriculture community. She serves on city, county, and state boards and committees and was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce Board for many years. Her dedication to the community was recognized this year when nominated and selected to receive the ATHENA Award. Her leadership has helped foster a stronger, more unified voice for agriculture, ensuring its vitality and resilience for future generations in agriculture. As she wisely advises, "Find a strong mentor, do not be afraid to ask questions. Being a female is your strength, not your weakness. And always remember that the right shade of lipstick goes a long way!" @
